- ~ Directly connects to the Sydney electricity grid
- ~ Resulting carbon emission reduction equates to approximately 800 trees planted and four cars off the road per year.

~ SANISORB

Sanisorb is a completely inert mineral and was developed because of the serious environmental, health and safety issues caused by the use of dangerous chemicals in feminine hygiene units.

Until Sanisorb, the method to treat sanitary waste has been to soak the contents in a chemical liquid vapour which is unfriendly to the environment and to health.

By eliminating moisture and drawing the air inside the unit through its unique molecular structure, all odour causing bacteria are eliminated, everything remaining is completely dry. The risk of spillage and contamination by chemicals is non-existent.
